

St Martin's of Bridgewater

Senior Moments

Presents

“Waves of Hope”

Tuesday, April 15, 2025 at 1:00PM

RSVP Len Cacciatore at Lencac@comcast.net

...“Waves of Hope” tells the remarkable story of the author’s mother, a n inspiring young woman named Agnes Joan (Verdi) Negra and heroic acts of kindness she performed during World War II. Imagine a time back in ...

... wonderful service to our fellow Americans, I’m sure victory will be ours, and you can be sure you and others like you have played a vital part.” Mrs. W.H. Smith, mother of prisoner of war...
June 21, 1943

...

About Author Ron Negra Ronald Edward Negra, a Nutley, NJ native, was born on November 9, 1947. He enjoys writing about genealogy and wrote his first book in 2004 titled, “The History of the Verdi Family...Celebr...

... Prisoners of War. His mother always believed it was important for Americans to understand the sacrifices of these men and the emotions they and their families experienced, of fear, anxiety, sadness, and hope.

About “Waves of Hope”:

“Waves of Hope” tells the remarkable story of the author’s mother, an inspiring young woman named Agnes Joan (Verdi) Negra and heroic acts of kindness she performed during World War II.

Imagine a time back in 1944 when she sat at her shortwave radio in Nutley night after night, listening to broadcasts in which our German enemies read the names of American soldiers they had captured and were holding as prisoners of war in Europe. This was personal for her. As a young bride and mother – her husband August had been wounded at the Battle of the Bulge and was missing in action.

Yet Ms. Negra did more than listen for news of her husband. She began to write down the names of the American soldiers whose names she heard on the air. She then personally wrote to the families of each of those soldiers. Often, her letters were the first indications that families received that their soldiers were alive.

That is the remarkable story of “Waves of Hope.” Yet the book is much more than a written history. It contains copies of the letters that Ms. Negra received from the families she had written to. The result is an astonishing and deeply moving story of kindness and hope.

And if you are wondering, Agnes and her GI husband were reunited after the war. This story of love, family, kindness and more will inspire you.

“As long as there are Americans like you who are doing such wonderful work and giving such wonderful service to our fellow Americans, I’m sure victory will be ours, and you can be sure you and others like you have played a vital part.”

Mrs. W.H. Smith, mother of prisoner of war... June 21, 1943

About Author Ron Negra

Ronald Edward Negra, a Nutley, NJ native, was born on November 9, 1947. He enjoys writing about genealogy and wrote his first book in 2004 titled, "The History of the Verdi Family...Celebrating 100 Years in America." Ron also completed a book on the Negra Family History and on the life of his Father, August E. Negra.

Ron holds a Bachelor of Science Degree and a Masters Degree in Business Management and Marketing. He retired as an Executive after working in the medical industry.

Ron was inspired to write "Waves of Hope" by his mother Agnes Joan Negra after learning of her extraordinary role in World War II communicating with the families of American soldiers, as they were captured and became Prisoners of War. His mother always believed it was important for Americans to understand the sacrifices of these men and the emotions they and their families experienced, of fear, anxiety, sadness, and hope.